On the back, write each word in your own sentence.

Three questions

1. Where did most work happen in colonial life?

2. How did churches and families shape a child's week?

3. What was a militia, and why did colonists have one?

Three facts to remember

1. Most colonists lived in households that grew or made much of what they used.
2. Church and family — not a modern school system — trained many children.
3. Ordinary people expected to defend their own towns.
